Marketing Research and Analytics

If you're intrigued by the unofficial science of how products are sold to consumers, you should consider a high-demand career as a market research analyst.

Market research analysts monitor marketing and sales trends and create methods for collecting data. They also assess the effectiveness of marketing strategies and create charts, graphs, and reports to present their analyses.

This field is projected to grow by 41 percent in the next decade. The median pay for a marketing research analyst is $60,570.

The Marketing Club

Affiliated with the American Marketing Association and open to marketing and other business students.
